AN JACOBS

PICTURES YOU NEED TO SEE

She beat out 10-term incumbent Joe Crowley in her congressional district and went on to become the youngest woman to ever serve in US Congress. Since assuming her seat, Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez has become one of the most prominent liberal voices in the United States.

Emily Warren Roebling was a builder and businesswoman largely responsible for the construction of the Brooklyn Bridge. She took over the project when her husband, the chief engineer, suffered a series of attacks caused by depression sickness that left him bedridden. Emily first served as her husband's liaison with the engineering team, and over time she displayed such proficiency in construction, materials, and cable fabrication that she had essentially assumed the duties of chief engineer. She did not hold an engineering degree.

Beatrix Shilling was a British mechanical engineer who served in the Royal Aircraft Establishment (RAE) during World War II. She did not only develop a way to allow Spitfire planes to dive while in combat but was also a successful race car driver – holding the title of the fastest female racer of her time.
